

Leonard Riegel

Strangely encrypted messages from outer space

112 pages
Euro 15,00 € (D)
published in March 2018
ISBN 978-3-95614-238-3

Looking for definitive answers to the compelling issues of our universe? Look no further than Seltsam verschlüsselte Botschaften aus dem All (Strangely encrypted messages from outer space).

Leo Riegel's book has all the answers to those burning questions: Why are young people today getting more conservative? Just why are wolves starving in forests close to Berlin? Why don't touchscreens react to liver sausage? What did great-grandad really do in the war? And what's with Nature and vulgarity?

If you've been asking yourself those questions, then Leonard Riegel's wonderful book is the one for you. "Is there anything this man cannot do?" (from the foreword by Moritz Hürtgen).

© Verlag Antje Kunstmann

Leonard Riegel

Leonard Riegel was born in Göttingen in 1983 and studied Visual Communication at the Academy of Arts in Kassel (KhK). He is a past recipient of the German Cartoon Prize (2009 and 2016) and the Sondermann Prize for Comic Art (2015). His work has appeared in Titanic, taz and the like. Leo Riegel has been editor for cartoon and comic art at Titanic since 2014. Leonard Riegel lives in Frankfurt am Main and Kassel.

Other titles of the author

Fear of Verse 978-3-95614-319-9