

Thomas Matthaeus Müller

What's to look forward to?

Is the best really yet to come?

80 pages

Euro 9,90 € (D)

published in March 2010

ISBN 978-3-88897-640-7

OK, so you don't have to be, say, in your forties to ask yourself life's big questions. But if you are, and you still haven't, then you're obviously missing something. And for those who won't be delving into Kant or seeking the counsel of some religious order, then this is the book for you. When do I read Proust? Do I really want to make my mark? Do I laugh enough? Could someone think she was my daughter? And, not forgetting: Precisely how many glasses of red wine should I be drinking? It's not hard to recognize Thomas Matthaeus Müller in his alter ego: both are seekers of truth, dedicated to life's little pleasures but only too aware of the pitfalls. And it's easy to recognize ourselves in his likable creation thanks to his masterly and deft illustrations. There's also a touch of melancholy, of course, but that doesn't mean he can't approach life's trickier issues with wit and a light touch.

© Kristina Brusa

Thomas Matthaeus Müller

Thomas Matthaeus Müller lives and works in Leipzig. An artist and illustrator, he is professor at the Institute for Graphics and Illustration. Born in 1966, he has been asking questions ever since and finds they just keep coming.

Other titles of the author

I won't tell you again! 978-3-88897-247-8